ABOUT ME

Dr. Lisa Morris Hibbler is an accomplished executive, educator, and strategic advisor with over three decades of leadership experience spanning local government, workforce development, organizational strategy, and community engagement.

Dr. Morris Hibbler retired from the City of Las Vegas after more than 27 years of distinguished service, where she held several executive leadership positions, including ICMA Credentialed Deputy City Manager and Chief Community Services Officer. I

She is currently Managing Partner and Co-Founder of JBM Strategic Partners, LLC, a consulting firm specializing in strategic planning, organizational development, workforce development, leadership coaching, and capacity building. Through her work, she helps public, private, and nonprofit organizations align strategy, people, and performance to achieve long-term success.

Her contributions have earned numerous honors, including induction into the UNLV College of Education Hall of Fame, recognition as the Greenspun College of Urban Affairs Alumni of the Year, the 2024 African American Trailblazer Impact Award, Nevada Business Magazine's Women to Watch, Vegas Inc.'s Women Inspiring Nevada, and the ICMA Community Heroes Award.

GREAT LEADERS DON'T ACCEPT LIMITS—THEY CREATE PATHWAYS WHERE NONE EXISTED BEFORE.
